Big question on my mind is will the 2009 Camaro get the new LS3 engine. Rated at 430 horsepower and 424 lb-ft of torque, we are talking about some real muscle under the hood. The Camaro concept had an LS2, but that's old news. The new 2008 Corvette features an LS3 motor, thus my guess is the new camaro will get the LS3 also. Just like in the past years the Camaro usually gets the same motor as the Vette. I tell you it would be really nice to see an LS7 option for the Camaro too. GM really has me wondering at this point...
